KENOSHA ADOPTS CITY MANAGER PLAN; IS FIRST IN WISCONSIN

Women Visit Polls and Bury Old Form under Big Majority

Kenosha, Wis.—The Kenosha women showed the teeth in woman's suffrage here on Tuesday when with an organization which included nearly all of the prominent women of the city, they went to the polls and voted to throw out the old aldermanic form of government, in vogue since 1850, and substitute for it a city manager plan. The election was dominated by women casting more than a majority vote at the election. They had worked in every ward and more than 200 automobiles in service. Old timers had not looked with much interest at the possibility of the new form of government giving over. It was not until late in the afternoon that the opponents of the form woke up to find that organization of the women had outwitted them and the election was lost.

The women also got behind the move to drive the jitney bus from the city and the plan to permit the jitneys to use the streets was defeated by nearly 2,000 votes.

More than sixty-seven hundred votes were cast in the election, the largest vote ever polled at an election in Kenosha. The city manager form won by a majority of 772.

WHAT THE MANAGER PLAN MEANS TO KENOSHA
(Special to the Gazette)
Kenosha, Wis., January 25.—A majority of 872 votes in a hotly contested election Tuesday, Kenosha adopted the city manager form of government and is the first Wisconsin city to accept this plan.

For months the contest has been waged. Kenosha has been under the old aldermanic form and the city conditions have been growing from bad to worse. Taxes have been high and even with the cut in the budget this year and a lower tax rate adopted by the council to stem the opposition, it proved a failure.

Women of the city organized to back the movement. The forces of special privilege were arrayed against the movement almost in a solid body. Laboring men were divided at first but later joined the forces for the new system.

The anti-prohibition crowd was opposed to the city manager, but to the women of the city the overwhelming result is due. Never have the women of Kenosha been so united in their support of a plan as they were at the polls. A house to house canvass was made. The women of the city were keenly interested that it was no trouble to get them out to vote.

The city manager plan as provided by the Wisconsin constitution is the chief of a council or commission to act as a legislative body. Kenosha adopted the form with a commission of five members, one from each ward, and a city manager to act as executive. The commission is to be elected by the voters for a term of four years. The city manager is to be appointed by the commission and to hold office for a term of four years. The city manager is to be responsible for the administration of the city and to report to the commission.

RECEIVING IN KENOSHA
Friends of good municipal government rejoice here today over the victory of Tuesday and they see a new and better future for Kenosha. The city has been dragged in the dust by the inefficient aldermanic government of the past years.

The total vote was 3,770, for and 2,898 against the city manager plan. The recent adoption of the city manager form by Cleveland, O., and after a bitter fight in Dayton, O., the retention of the aldermanic system there, Wisconsin cities are expected to follow the example of Kenosha.

Farm Bureau Banquet to Be Big Affair—Women Are Invited.

Women as well as men in Rock county are urged to attend the first Annual Farm Bureau banquet meeting to be held in the Janesville Y. M. C. A. Thursday. It is hoped to have more than 300 men and women interested in "agriculture" development attend the banquet meeting at which Theodore McKelvin, Madison, will be the main speaker.

Invitations have been sent out and there is some doubt if all will be received by the farmers and their wives in time to respond.

"Come anyway," advises the committee, making plans for the big meeting. "We want all the farmers and their wives to be present. Those who are unable to attend will be asked to have a representative from the county agent or Farm Bureau secretary, C. B. Culver and have places reserved but whether reservations are made or not, we want the farmers and their wives to attend the banquet."

During the morning there is to be a grain display and meeting. At noon the Farm Bureau banquet will be held and following the address of Theodore McKelvin, livestock breeders will have a county meeting.

A more effective county organization for the promotion of Chester White swine is expected to result at a gathering to be held during the sale at the Butts and Babcock farm near Evansville on Wednesday.

Postponement of Genoa Meet Is Predicted
(By Associated Press.)
Washington.—Postponement of the assembling of the Genoa conference, set for March 8, probably will be agreed upon by the nations before the conference opens. Estimates of government receipts and expenditures for the fiscal years 1922 and 1923 showed there would "more probably be a deficit than a surplus," said a source here. It was also predicted that the conference would be postponed because of the Washington arms meeting. Even if all other factors were favorable, it was said, it would be practically impossible to assemble so large a gathering as that contemplated for Genoa in the next six weeks.

Would Make 'Gas' Pay for Highways
(By Associated Press.)
Madison.—Gasoline will provide funds for building Wisconsin roads in addition to running its automobiles, should the 1922 legislature enact into law the proposal submitted to T. J. Cunningham, supervisor of oil inspectors, by a committee of his department.

This proposal in the form of a bill for introduction into the legislature, calls for a one-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline sold in Wisconsin. Revenue of $1,250,000 would result which, the bill provides, is to go into the general fund for use in highway construction and maintenance.

Governor Blaine first suggested the plan long ago and it was not until the oil inspectors when in an address at their convention here, Dec. 15, he emphasized what he believed the necessity of placing the greater part of the burden for road building on automobile owners.

Committee Forms Proposal.
Following his talk, a committee composed of E. L. Tracy and W. P. Willis, Milwaukee; A. W. Oviatt, Madison, and Alker Hoffer, Ashland, was chosen to formulate a definite proposal.

The bill they have drawn calls for a one-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline sold in Wisconsin. The privilege of using such motor oil on public vehicles on the highways of Wisconsin.

Any person or corporation shipping or receiving gasoline in the state would, under provisions of the bill, be required "before the 10th day of each month, to report to the state treasurer, every shipment, receipt or production and send the correct remittance, which the treasurer shall credit to the highway fund."

Add Cent to Price.
Dealers are permitted to add the one-cent tax to the price of the motor fuel, but if they fail to make the required reports to the state treasurer, are subject to fine and imprisonment.

Administration of the law would rest with the oil inspectors.

The same committee which drew up the gasoline tax bill also has prepared a measure calling for changes in the oil inspection law. The bill provides that a distillation test of gasoline shall be made in place of the present specific gravity test.

SCAN OPPOSITION TO SOLDIER BONUS
Adverse Statement by Mellon Causes Controversy in Capital.

Washington.—Congressional leaders, preparing to carry out the administration's plan to put through a soldier bonus bill, were analyzing Wednesday the statement of the treasury secretary for continued opposition to the bonus, as transmitted in a letter from Secretary Mellon to Chairman Fordney, late Tuesday.

Secretary Mellon declared any attempt to provide for a bonus through use of the principal and interest of the foreign debt, to the soldiers, would be "little as well as unwise" and that an attempt to do so through new government borrowings would be "dangerous in the extreme."

If there is to be a bonus, however, the secretary said, it "must be provided for through taxation, in addition to the taxes imposed by existing law." Estimates of government receipts and expenditures for the fiscal years 1922 and 1923 showed there would "more probably be a deficit than a surplus," said a source here. It was also predicted that the conference would be postponed because of the Washington arms meeting. Even if all other factors were favorable, it was said, it would be practically impossible to assemble so large a gathering as that contemplated for Genoa in the next six weeks.

NEW YORK TELLS WHY WATERWAY IS NOT FEASIBLE
GOV. MILLER'S COMMISSION RAISES MANY OBJECTIONS TO PROJECT.
(By Associated Press.)
Albany.—The commission appointed by Gov. Miller to oppose the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence river waterway project filed with the legislature Wednesday its second report.

In its memorandum, the commission opposes the St. Lawrence project on the grounds that:

Plans and estimates of engineers for the improvement from Montreal to Lake Ontario are preliminary only and that data submitted is not sufficient to indicate that the work can be done for the amount stated.

New York state will not voluntarily surrender its vested rights in the water power of the St. Lawrence.

Whatever water power is available belongs to the state of New York and the provinces of Quebec and Ontario and that neither the Dominion of Canada nor the United States government can lawfully appropriate it without compensation to the owners.

In order to produce 4,100,000 horsepower and a 25 foot channel, the United States and Canadian governments will have to spend more than $488,000,000 for a 30 foot channel with the same amount of horsepower developed the cost will exceed $500,000,000.

Operation of the waterway will be hampered by ice and flood conditions.

It is unwise for the two governments to tie up their natural resources in such a project.

HOLD-UP VICTIMS IN FIERCE FIGHT BUT ROBBERS FLEE
$200 IN CASH AND CHECKS STOLEN FROM VANCE BROTHERS.
FIENDISH CRIME

Bandits, Posing as Beggars, Beat Aged Men as Sisters Watch.

Attacked by two masked and unknown men in their isolated home on a side road a mile north of Lima Center, Tuesday night, William John Vance, aged 72, and William Francis Vance, aged 70, bachelor brothers, engaged in a fierce battle with two bandits. The bandits were unable to ward off robbery. The thieves, one 6 feet tall and the other 5 feet 3 inches, one young and the other old, took $200 in cash and a small amount of cash, the exact amount not known.

Held up at the point of two revolvers and a rifle, the aged men rushed at the robbers who tried to throw up their hands. The elderly spinster sisters, Mary Jane and Sarah Anne, believed to be 68 and 66 years respectively, were frightened into the house and the men fled with the money.

Both men beaten.
Both aged men were badly beaten, the thieves making free use of the hands to quell the unexpected bravery of their prey. Francis' nose was broken and his face bruised and cut severely. John sustained a cauliflower ear, a black eye and a cut on the back of his head.

The fight and robbery occurred between 8 and 9 p. m. The plunderers knocked at the door of the modest farm home and asked for food. The aged men, who were sitting at the table, admitted them. Once inside the door, the visitors, masked, on the upper part of their faces, immediately drew guns, shouting: "Hold up your hands!"

House Is Ransacked.
The aged men threw themselves upon the intruders. They fought all around their room, but the robbers, armed with revolvers, overpowered the old men by force of strength, their hands wielded the butts of their guns, finally, flooring the Vance brothers.

They then went through their pockets, taking the checks and small change. While one guarded the door, the other hurriedly searched through the room, turning up valuables. Every room was turned upside down in haste, contents of closets, bureaus being strewn upon the floor.

Backing slowly out of the door upon leaving, the men warned the Vance family not to move from the house.

COUNCIL TO VOTE SALARIES, FEB. 6

Few Changes Expected in List—Firemen May Get Increase.

Fixing salaries of city officials, both elective and appointive, for 1922 is the next big matter for the council to dispose of, the list being scheduled for adoption at the next meeting, Feb. 6. While it is yet too early to forecast who will get the increases and who may be given decreases it is a safe conjecture that the salary boosts will be scarce for the year. The general feeling is that the salaries of practically all officers will be continued on the present scale.

Firemen are looking forward to an increase of $200 a year as a result of the tentative arrangement arrived at in regard to the new law which went into effect Jan. 1, requiring all cities to adopt the new law. It was the understanding at that time that the city did not follow the new law, the men would be given a raise. It was pointed out by Chief C. J. Murphy that even though the city would be saving several thousand dollars by operating under the old system, what the outcome of the salary talk will be hinges on the meeting, Feb. 6.

Police officers are given an increase, a fact that even though the same salary scale with firemen and have been raised in the past, and some of the employees are:

- $2,600—City engineer. (Includes $800 as water department superintendent.)
- $2,200—Plumbing inspector, street commissioner (including $200 as wood commissioner).
- $2,100—Chief, police chief, fire chief.
- $2,000—Assessor, treasurer.
- $1,500—Sanitary inspector, electrical inspector, attorney.
- $1,400—Vigilance nurse.
- $1,200—Health officer.
- $1,000—Master, scaler of weights and measures.
- $800—Comptroller.

Under the general charter law, which since the first of January applies to all Wisconsin cities, cities are required to fix salaries at five regular meetings in February, and these salaries when fixed cannot be increased or diminished during the term of office for which the officials are selected.

2 Cities Demand Bonds for Cabs

In connection with the proposed ordinance to amend the taxicab ordinance so as to exclude cabs used only for funerals, weddings and other occasions, Janesville and Beloit directors point out that they protect the passengers of such cabs by liability insurance and claim that the majority of the taxicab lines do not. They demand Madison and Fond du Lac have in force ordinances requiring taxicabs to provide protection for passengers—$500 in Madison and $2,500 in Fond du Lac.

The Madison ordinance does not cover funeral cabs. The first section of it says:

"No person, firm or corporation shall, for hire or reward, transport passengers or baggage to or from any railway depot or steamboat landing within the city of Madison; nor shall any person solicit passengers or baggage to be transported for hire or reward within said city unless duly licensed as hereinafter provided."

Section 4 says: "In addition to the license fee, each applicant shall execute and deliver to the city of Madison a bond in the penal sum of $500."

FINDS FAMILY IN STRICKEN RUSSIA

Beloit Shoe Merchant's Long Search for Wife and Two Children Ends.

Max Rossmann, whom Judge George Grimm granted citizenship papers on the pledge he would go to Russia to seek his wife and two children, succeeded in his search for his family after traveling for months in the stricken Russian district. The four Rossmanns are now enroute to the United States.

For eight years, during which he was a prosperous shoe merchant in Beloit, Rossmann sought to obtain trace of his wife, whom he left in Ukraine when he came to America. He had prospered and never once did he forget his obligations to his family in Russia—but he could not locate them by mail nor through the Red Cross agencies. At the same time he was seeking citizenship papers which the government refused on the contention he had not supported his dependents. He came up in the naturalization hearings and until last year was not able to present evidence that he could locate his family and support them. Finally, a letter came through from his wife which told of her plight. On this evidence Judge Grimm over-ruled the objections of the government, and granted Rossmann full citizenship papers, which entitled the Beloit Russian to travel as an American citizen.

In a letter to a brother in Beloit, Rossmann tells that his two children were so thin from lack of food and care that they resembled skeletons. Every Russian is looking to America. It was only last November he was able to obtain a passport that gave him sufficient protection and rights to travel to the interior.

At 4 P. M. Wednesday Miss Alberta Crandall was to give a Schubert recital in her studio.

PRE-WAR DOLLAR IS GROWING IN VALUE

Chicago.—The pre-war dollar now is worth 72 cents when spent for meat and 68 cents when spent for other foodstuffs according to a statement made public Wednesday by J. T. Russell, president of the National Association of Meat Councils. Eighteen months ago, Mr. Russell said, the pre-war dollar was worth 72 cents in the retail meat market and a year ago, 62 cents.

BRIEFS BY WIRE

Chicago.—The six ship crafts unions rejected seven rules of the new railroad shopmen's working agreement, nearly all of which affected time and one-half wage provisions for overtime which were removed by the board.

Chicago.—Fred Upham, republican national committee chairman, made public figures showing the committee still owes $708,131.32 for the 1920 campaign.

Boston.—William L. Saunders, former president of the American Institution of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, in an address, favored the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterways project.

BELOIT CHAMBER LOSES COURT CASE

Beloit.—After deliberating 20 minutes, a jury in municipal court brought in a verdict in favor of the Chamber of Commerce of Beloit for $25. Its annual membership fee, which they alleged had been contracted to pay, M. G. Jeffrey, Janesville, was the attorney for Branigan and C. H. Christensen was counsel for the chamber. It is expected the case will be appealed to circuit court.

Delavan

(Special to the Gazette.)

Delavan.—By 12 votes, the authorization of a $125,000 bond issue to build a swimming pool and gymnasium into the Delavan high school was lost on a special school meeting held here Tuesday night. The vote was 310 against and 238 in favor of it. The vote, the largest in the history of a school meeting is indicative of the interest taken.

Following the announcement of the vote, a resolution for reconsideration at a later date after the people had been educated to the needs of the school system, introduced by Rev. Robert Lincoln Kelley, was passed.

Sharp Debate Features

The vote was not taken until after a sharp debate had taken place with E. Z. Bradley, Cyril E. S. Jones and Mr. Kelley leading the argument for the addition, and Mrs. Gardner against. The building of a grade school in the eastern end of town was suggested to better the situation. This was declared impracticable as it would not help the condition in the high school. At the present time 646 students are crowded in a building built for the accommodation of 450. This includes both grades and high school pupils.

Students Go in Attire

Students entering the high school in February will be put in the attire, Mr. See said, and there will be no place for pupils who are expected to enter in September, unless the building has become a fire trap because of additional desks placed in the rooms, which have eliminated many aisles usually required for fire protection, it was said.

Those leading the opposition to the addition to the high school are those who "do not see the need for it."

BIG FIRE IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Man.—Fire in the Woolworth store on Portage avenue, in the heart of the retail business district.

Phoenix, Whittet ON PARK COMMITTEE

Delavan.—J. I. Phoenix, president of the Bradley Knitting company, is a member of the state advisory committee appointed by Secretary F. K. Cannon of the Wisconsin Lakes and Parks association, to raise a fund to purchase the Northern Lakes park. Lawrence Whittet, Edgerton, also is a member.

FRANKIE KICK

Rockford 1st who meets Al Dale of Kansas City in semi-windup here Thursday at 128 pounds for eight rounds.

Frankie Kick, Buck Mullins and Jack Keating—the last named the chap who meets Charlie Riley of Janesville—knocked out of crashing at Rockford Wednesday after being under the direction of "Hank" Garrett for a couple of weeks.

Rockford fans predict that Frankie Kick will lay out Al Dale in the eighth round semi-windup before the eighth round has arrived. Others believe that Dale has more staying power and comeback than Kick and that Frankie is the chap to beware of himself.

Little hope is held out by the Perses club for the chance of Buck Mullins against Leo Trainer of Madison in a six-round preliminary at 115 pounds.

Milwaukee Coming Strong to Root for Young Benz

Milwaukee fight fans are strong for Battling Benz of Butternut who is down to meet Bobby Ward of St. Paul and formerly of Beloit in a 10-round windup on the Janesville Elks' fight card at the Coliseum rink here Thursday night. Billy Mitchell, Benz's manager, arranged Tuesday over the long distance telephone for a block of seats for Cream city followers of the fight game.

Benz arrives here Wednesday. He has appeared before the state boxing commission at Milwaukee and received their OK for the battle. He is in rugged shape and the benefit of his training under the watchful eye of Richie, Pinkie and Billy Mitchell.

Rockford has the idea that Frankie Kick is going to have an easy time with Al Dale of Kansas City who fought Jack Zallie to a draw here in the December battles. Those who have seen both men work out, stand at no higher for Dale, especially after the great comeback he showed in holding Zallie. These 128-pounders will go eight rounds in the second end of a double windup.

COUNTY HAS REPLY TO ROW OVER POOR

Anderson Is Defended—City Officials Blamed for Situation.

Verbal outbursts by the Janesville city council against the county system of poor relief and allegations of inefficient relief administration work by Poormaster Asa Anderson were bitterly rebuffed by city officers, Wednesday. With so much discussion of the poor relief expenditures in both Deloit and Janesville, the question arises as to whether the county is doing its own poor relief work or the city is doing it for the county. Anderson is defended by city officials.

Under the present system, adopted some years ago, the poor relief comes under county jurisdiction, the entire county being a taxing unit. "Now if we changed back to the old system of each city, town or village doing its own poor relief work, the city council and Mayor Welch might holler out of the other side of their mouths," agreed county officers. "As it is now the cities have all the advantage. Last year $6,000 was spent in the northern district and fully 90 percent of that amount went to relief work in Janesville. There were towns and villages contributing in that fund that never drew a cent of the relief. If Janesville wants to tax themselves and do their own poor relief work, it is quite certain that the county board will not object. Certainly the townships never have got back the full amount they paid in taxes for relief work."

According to Poormaster Asa Anderson there are now 83 families in Janesville drawing poor relief. More county funds are being spent now than at any other time in the last year for relief. Last year there was $6,200 spent in Janesville and the northern district including 15 townships, three villages and three cities as compared to $17,000 in Deloit with five townships, one city and one village.

During the recent board meeting the Deloit poor relief was severely censured for spending too much money and now Asa Anderson is criticized for not spending enough.

City Officials Laid. "The trouble is right with the Janesville officials on the county refusing to pay those bills," explained County Clerk Howard W. Lee and County Treasurer Arthur M. Church. The city clerk, the mayor, the health officer, or no one else doing so much "relief" if the council ever took the time and effort to notify any one in the county that they were patients in the hospital needing public aid. The county would have paid the bills if the agreement, soon kept. The city agreed to do it and then were too lax to keep their agreement. The county officials take exception to the statement of Mayor Welch that Janesville pays the bills. The county's taxes and gets nothing for poor relief. As a matter of fact, they say, the townships pay more than half of the taxes and the total expended on poor relief in the townships is nominal as compared to what is spent in Janesville let alone Deloit where three times as much was spent in a smaller district.

AGED LIMA FARMERS BATTLE WITH BANDITS

house until 4 a. m. "We will stay outside and watch you," one of them said, "and if you move outdoors before that time, we will shoot."

Fear to Leave House.

Having no telephone, and being a half mile from the nearest house, the family obeyed, fearing for their lives. The first warning was sounded at 3 a. m. when a milk collector came up to the house.

Of the checks which the robbers got, one was for $26 in payment for eggs sold by the Vance brothers Tuesday. Another was for $75 for stock sold Jan. 17. There were two checks for $100 each, one for $100 and one for $100.

No trace of the robbers has been found. David McDonald, a farmer living near, states that he was attending his field between 3 and 4 a. m. he noticed a man walking across his field in the direction of the railroad tracks. The Vance heard no noise of the man approaching and it is believed that they walked to the house.

It is current belief at Lima Center that the robbery was done by local talent. It is believed that the Vance brothers do not banking business and therefore thought that the robbers expected a big haul.

The family was still in a dazed condition Wednesday morning. They could give little description of their assailants and were not positive that they were masked. The brothers refused medical attention, although attending physician urged them to permit the visit of a physician.

Deputy Sheriff Harry Rees of Lima Center commenced investigation Wednesday morning. Sheriff Carl Winkler of Rock county and the authorities of Dane and Walworth counties have been notified.

The robbery is similar to the one at Shirland, Ill. near the Wisconsin-Illinois line Sunday night when Justice A. P. Grunke and his wife were bound by three men and robbed of $25 in Illinois bonds and checks for cash amounting to $45. The men gained entrance to the home on the pretense of using the telephone.

COOPERATIVE PLAN FOR FARMERS TOLD BY CALIFORNIAN

1921 that returned more than the cost of production. Not only have these products returned the cost of production to the producers, but the trade also has made fair profits. And the steadily sustained demand by consumers for California fruits is an evidence of the power of continuance.

Participation in the economic rehabilitation of Europe, extension of credit to foreign buyers through the federal reserve system, and perfection of the cooperative marketing idea were among the remedies for the existing agricultural depression recommended Wednesday by the speakers.

Most Aid Europe. Participation in the economic rehabilitation of Europe, extension of credit to foreign buyers through the federal reserve system, and perfection of the cooperative marketing idea were among the remedies for the existing agricultural depression recommended Wednesday by the speakers.

Mr. Anderson said the United States should be represented in the coming international economic conference at Geneva and should accept representation on the reparations commission.

Rehabilitation of Germany is necessary to restore Europe, he continued. He suggested enlargement of the federal farm land bank system to allow it to issue and sell debentures against mortgages on elevators, thus providing a new form of credit.

Extension of credit by the government to Europe of one or two billion dollars, to enable buying of agricultural products, also was advocated.

The speaker declared the government should be petitioned to establish a minimum price on certain staple products through the war finance corporation or revival of the grain corporation.

Governor Parker of Louisiana proposed the opening of export markets through extension of long time credits to foreign buyers through the federal reserve system.

The Farm Bureau movement is looked on by the board as the greatest forward step taken by American agriculture in 40 years, declared Robert McDougall, president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

George Morton goes to work at the home of Planter, a rich man, when his father dies. He becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job acts as groom to Sylvia Planter when she rides. Sylvia is very kind to him, her horse and thinking her unconscious, George kisses her, calling out that he loves her. She drives him from the place and George threatens her brother, who goes to horse with him, but in a day's fight, he beats him. George goes to Princeton, meets daily, a tutor, gets a place on the football team and adds his college to his list of accomplishments. He has determined that Sylvia Planter shall marry him and meets her several times, each time carefully watching the breach between them. But he continues in the determination. George kills a very big dog to George and at her home meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing.

His attention was caught by an air of politeness the oblong box had, as if to something infinitely farther than ambition and success, yet so close it angered him he could not see or hear. He made him think of that was, that was making him rich, in terms of life instead of dollars and cents. He felt disgruntled.

"There should be more light here," he said, defensively.

But his mother shook her head. He arranged a chair for her and sat near by while they discussed the details of her departure. She let him see that she shrink from leaving the house, against which, nevertheless, she had bitterly complained ever since Old Planter had got it. Evidently she wanted to linger in her familiar rut, waiting with the attitude of a waiter whatever fate might offer. That was the reason people had to be helped, because they preferred vicious inertia to the efforts and risks of change. Then why did they want the prices of those who had had the courage to go forth and fight? Why couldn't Sylvia see that?

Patience George told her she needn't worry about money again. She had a sister who was now married and moved West to a farm that was not particularly flourishing. Undoubtedly her sister would be glad to have her and she would be glad to have her. So he would ever come his mother's reluctance to help herself. She glanced up.

"Who is that?"

He listened. The women in the kitchen were standing again. Light feet crossed the floor.

"Maybe somebody from the big house," his mother answered. They went to the door.

For a moment the entire building was as silent as the oblong box. Then the door opened.

Miss Planter slipped in and closed the door.

George caught his breath, studying her as she hesitated, accustoming herself to the insufficient light. She moved about the room, looking at her clock and the grace of a portrait by Gainsborough. When she recognized him, indeed, she seemed as permanently caught as a portrait.

"After Sylvia," his mother whispered.

"They told me I would find you here," Sylvia said, uncertainly. "I didn't know where to go."

"She broke off, biting her lip. George strode around the oblong box to the window, turning there with a slow bow. Even across that distance, the oblong box was so close to him that he felt the challenge were lively in her glance.

"It was very kind of you to come," he said. But he was sorry she had come to see him in such surroundings. It was a stimulation of the ugly memories he had struggled to destroy. He read her instinct to hurt him now as she had hurt the impatient woman, Morton, who had lived in this house.

"When one of our people is in trouble," she began, deliberately. "I thought I might be of some help to your mother."

Even over the feeling of security George had just tried to give her the old menace reached the uneasy woman.

"You remember him, Miss Sylvia?"

"Very well," Sylvia answered. "He used to be my groom."

"The title comes from you," George said, dryly.

His mother's glance fluttered from one to the other. What did she expect—Old Planter stalking in to carry out his threats?

After all these years I scarcely knew him myself.

Sylvia's colour heightened. He approached her rising temper.

"Bad servants," he said, "linger in good employers' memories."

"I know, Miss Sylvia," his mother burst out, "that he wasn't to come back here, but—" scolded, "that you ceased treading me like a groom." It isn't very convincing to me. I doubt if it is to you. I fancy it's really only your pride. I don't see why you should care so much where I am concerned."

Her hand made a quick gesture of repulsion.

"You haven't changed. You may walk on with me while I tell you this. If you were like the men I know and can be friends with you'd leave me alone. Will you stop this persecution? It comes down to that. Will you stop forcing me to dance with you, to listen to you?"

"He smiled, shaking his head. "I'll make you dance with me more than ever. I've seen very little of you lately. I hope this winter—"

She stopped, facing him, her cheeks flaming.

"You need. You remind me every time I meet you of just what you are, just what you came from, just what you said and did that day."

"That is my aim," he smiled.

"When were all like that will it make much difference who our fathers and mothers were?"

She shivered. She started awfully away.

"Miss Planter!"

The unexpectedness of the naked command may have brought her around. He walked to her.

"When will you tell me, beyond that it is unforgetable to turn your back on life?"

"Miss Planter!"

Had he really meant to suggest that she could possess life only through him? Doubtless the sublime effort of that interpretation reached her. She commenced to laugh, his colour rising. She glanced away, and her laughter died.

"You may as well understand," he said, "that I am never going to leave you alone."

She started across the leaf-strewn grass. He kept pace with her.

"Dyspeptic are funny people," said Dr. Bilety C. Chamberlain, Chicago dietitian.

"Dyspeptics," he went on, "are all alike. I heard a typical dyspeptic giving an order in a large restaurant after the opera the other night. The man is a millionaire, and he said:

"Oh, dear, dear, when I was young I could eat anything and pay for nothing, but now that I am able to pay for anything I can eat nothing. Bring me, waiter, a broiled lobster, a Wash rarebit, a piece of cherry pie with Monfort cheese and a plate of banana ice cream to top off with."

"What did you learn at school?" the boss asked the fair young applicant for the stenographer's job.

"I learned that spelling is essential to be a good stenographer."

The boss chuckled.

"Good. Now let me hear you spell 'essential'."

The girl hesitated for the fraction of a second.

"There are three ways," she replied. "Which do you prefer?"

And she gave the job.

"What does the prisoner give as his occupation?" asked the desk sergeant.

"Says he's a thief."

"A thief? Well, he's honest, anyway."

"When one of our people is in trouble," she began, deliberately. "I thought I might be of some help to your mother."

"When one of our people is in trouble," she began, deliberately. "I thought I might be of some help to your mother."

Even over the feeling of security George had just tried to give her the old menace reached the uneasy woman.

"You remember him, Miss Sylvia?"

"Very well," Sylvia answered. "He used to be my groom."

"The title comes from you," George said, dryly.

His mother's glance fluttered from one to the other. What did she expect—Old Planter stalking in to carry out his threats?

After all these years I scarcely knew him myself.

Sylvia's colour heightened. He approached her rising temper.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

TINKER BOB SAYS FAREWELL!

So the hunter went far out of sight toward his home for he could not think of hunting after the way Tinker Bob had tried to him. And when he was gone the creatures of the forest came back again to say a word to the King before he left. For Tinker and Silky, the silly monkey, were going to the jungle land to visit the creatures that were so big and wonderful. Yes, we will hear every day from Tinker Bob as he sees the wonder of that far-away land. He isn't going so far away that we cannot follow him.

"Well, send them all our friends in here," he said to Silky. And the monkey went out to gather them in. Heady was so frightened that he sat perfectly still and said not a word. The Hunter had frightened him. He had no more desire in his heart to catch poor Jack, the Rabbit. In came Silly Mink, and Three Legs, the Nutsrat, and Sammy Squirrel, and Rusty, and Tree Mouse; and Snooty, the Bob Cat; and Mr. Weasel, the Great; and Dr. Coon, and Susie Catamount; and he had been married to Sammy not long since. Jack, the wood rat, brought his friend, the beautiful Miss Meadow Mouse. Jack was very polite, he held her by the arm. All of these and others came to see the King.

"I'm so glad to see you this morning," said Tinker Bob. "I want to tell you I will send you a letter every little while and tell you what I see and what the silly monkey is doing. Old Man Experience has promised to meet me at the edge of the forest—sundown today and tell me what I should do on the journey to the jungle land. He is a fine old chap and I want so much to see him before I go. Every day I will visit some creature and find out what he lives for and who his friends are. There are some folks in the jungle lands that are big enough to eat all of us up and then wonder if he had his breakfast. But I will be safe as long as Old Man Experience lets me have the Stones that are so powerful."

"You want to look out, O King," said Sammy. "My mother told me once that there was a fellow swallowed alive by one of those big jungle folks. And if they swallow you alive you won't ever have a chance to get out. You must come back to us for we will not know how to live without you." Then Sammy said a few tears and so did Susie.

"Never mind about me. You just watch out that no one gets you while I'm gone and I'll tell you all about it when I get back," Tinker made reply.

Tinker loved the little folks of the forest. He picked them up one at a time and hugged them. When he came to poor Jack, the Rabbit, he just hung on to him for he was such a soft fellow.

SUNNING THE HAIR

In most cases, the trouble with the hair is simply that the scalp does not get enough sunlight and fresh air. One of the reasons why bobbed hair is healthy is because it is well ventilated. Fresh air can reach the scalp which, like the rest of the body, must breathe. And it is frequently so covered up with artificial hair or with hats, that it gets very little chance to do that.

If you have been having trouble with your hair, before you begin to worry about it, try giving it a daily fresh air bath; and whenever the weather permits, give it a thorough sunning. When you wash the hair in the summer time, always dry it out doors. In the winter sit near a window through which the sun is coming, so that the sun's rays can reach the scalp. They are effective even through the medium of window glass.

The hair should be parted in different places, at different times. If you normally wear a part on the right side, make it an inch further down or inch higher up the head, and from time to time part the hair in the middle or on the other side. This is simply to give the various parts of the scalp a better chance to ventilate.

Every night before you go to bed, take down the hair, run the fingers through it, and let it hang down. Then they all went back into the forest to await the King's return.

all day and it needs this airing and the stimulation of the fingers rubbed over it. A great many people advise braiding the hair at night. I never have, for the reason that I think the hair should be loose and free as much as possible. It is necessarily packed together during the day, but that is no reason why it should be closely packed at night also. A plan would do it if it were kept away from the air and sun, and so will the hair.

Constant Reader—I regret that you did not send a stamped addressed envelope, as there is not space to advise you. From the description of your skin and the lifeless state of your hair, I should think you were in need of a good building up all over. Your hair will improve if you take the scalp a thorough massaging each day—not the mere rubbing with the fingers which you say you have done, but a massage which will leave the scalp feeling all aglow and tingling from the renewed circulation.

Mabel—Dark circles under the eyes indicate some internal derangement, unless you are not getting enough sleep. If they continue, consult the doctor.

FINE AVERAGE IN CROFT SOW SALE

Fair Ground Building Packed With Buyers at Two Duroc Sales.

There was a $31.75 average on the 42 head of Duroc-Jersey sows and gilts offered at the annual sale of Clarence Croft on the fair grounds Tuesday afternoon. The top sale was $100 bid on Lady Croft, a junior yearling.

The average prices compares favorably with others on the Duroc circuit for in several counties $30 have been the sale averages. The bidding was brisk for the Rock county stock was in active demand. The most of the buyers were from Southern Wisconsin. Some of the stock went out of the state.

Forty-five head from the herd of Edward Parker was offered at the annual Parkhurst sale Wednesday.

The fair ground building, unfortunately jammed, was packed during both sales. There were more than 200 at the Croft sale when the building was at its height. The sales room in the educational building was packed, showing the need of an adequate sales pavilion. The stock for both sales was housed in one of the wings. The total sales from the Croft herd amounted to $2,250.

A. W. Thompson, York, Nebraska, was auctioneer at both sales.

FELT LIKE SHE WOULD SUFFER ALL HER LIFE

Aged Detroit Woman Tried So Many Different Medicines Without Relief She Became Discouraged.

"Tanlac Did So Much For Me I Want Everybody To Profit By My Experience," Says Mrs. Smith.

"You can tell them that Tanlac is the right medicine for old folks. Too, for I have tried it myself and have never known its equal in all the seventy years of my life," was the statement made, recently, by Mrs. W. J. Smith, of 605 Temple Ave., Detroit, Mich.

"I have been troubled with gas-trills for many years and when I began taking Tanlac I was in an extremely weak, run-down condition. I could not eat anything but what was bland and bland food was about as good as nothing. I suffered untold misery. This condition weakened me to such an extent that I could barely get around and look after my household duties. I had tried so many medicines with no results that I became discouraged and felt that I would have to suffer the rest of my life.

"One day I came across a Tanlac testimonial that described my case so well I began taking the medicine myself and it's a fact, I felt better before I had finished the first bottle. My appetite returned, my digestion gradually improved and I kept getting stronger every day. I have taken seven bottles of Tanlac now and am like a different person. The gas and bloating have almost stopped and I have not felt so strong and energetic in many years. I am glad for everybody to have the benefit of my experience with Tanlac. It certainly is a grand medicine."

Elkhorn—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Florence Reynolds, 5712 North Washington Ave., Chicago, Jan. 23, when her daughter Lynn was married to Dewey Bishop. They were attended by the bride's sister, Mrs. Wm. Dooley, and a cousin of the groom as best man.

The bride was dressed in white beaded, cotton crepe, her veil cascaded with orange blossoms; she carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses and lilacs. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a bunch of white roses.

The nation of honor was dressed in orchid crepe lace and carried sweet peas. At four o'clock, to the strains of Roscoe O'Hara's orchestra the bride, preceded by the maid of honor, Mrs. Wm. Dooley, and a host of bridesmaids, entered the church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. J. O'Hara, pastor of the Fourth Chicago Presbyterian church. The bride was accompanied by her father, Mr. Wm. Dooley, and her mother, Mrs. Florence Reynolds. The groom was accompanied by his father, Mr. Dewey Bishop, and his mother, Mrs. Wm. Dooley.

SENATORS BLOCK GENOA ACCEPTANCE

France's Refusal to Discuss Reparations Also Holds U. S. Away.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Copyright 1922, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington—Just why the United States government will not be represented officially at the economic conference to be held at Genoa in March is for the moment the most interesting story in the capital. No one reason but a combination of circumstances have prevented President Harding from accepting on behalf of the United States the invitation recently extended by the allies to his reconstruction Europe and indirectly the economic situation of the whole world.

First, the "isolation bloc" in the United States senate have served notice that if the administration insists on going to Genoa it can expect serious opposition to ratification of the treaties and conventions adopted at the Washington conference on armament.

Second, the administration is discouraged over the refusal of France to discuss reparations at Genoa, an adjustment of which is regarded as essential to economic recuperation everywhere.

America's Word at Stake

Third, unless the United States government can make good the promises and agreements entered into by the executive branch of the government and present to the world fully ratified treaties, America's word at international conferences in the future will be of little avail.

Ever since the return of Senator Hiram Johnson from a trip to California, the "isolation bloc," consisting of the original "irreconcilables" who fought the Versailles treaty plus a few others from the democratic side of the chamber, have constituted an opposition formidable enough to prevent ratification of the four power Pacific treaty as well as other pacts adopted by the Washington conference. Mr. Johnson's announced opposition has stiffened the backs of his wavering colleagues. Senator Borah, an original irreconcilable, told meddlers in Europe's affairs was still strong in the senate and that it was going to be difficult getting a treaty through which dealt with Pacific affairs.

Why Not Going to Genoa.

President Harding will not, of course, say publicly that he is refusing to go to Genoa because of the situation in the Senate; but he is well aware that until the Washington conference has completed its work, there is no use talking about other international conferences. By completing its work it not only means the settlement of the main conference, but also the beginning of the ratification of the treaties by the Senate. For when the Washington conference ends, it will have reached merely the same point as the Versailles peace conference—the critics then begin their work of dissection and analysis. The Senate is keeping quiet, till the whole set of treaties is submitted. Then the biggest question of all will be answered—whether the executive branch of the government under a Republican administration can do more in handling the senate on foreign policy than a Democratic administration. The drive for ratification has not begun but the first victory has been won by the isolation bloc which has already obtained the approval of the White House to its plans for the consideration of domestic matters first and treaties afterward.

Will Be Two Late.

No matter how enthusiastic Mr. Harding or Mr. Hughes might be for participation in the Genoa conference, they cannot send official representatives if they wait till after the treaties are ratified because the Genoa conference will be under way and probably adjourned before the Senate gets through discussing the treaties. The expectation now is that the treaty will follow the enactment of a bonus bill and a tariff bill. This involves indefinite delay but the administration has not yet incorporated any objection to that order of business.

You're Guilty If You Sell Parts of Whiskey Still.

Springfield, O.—Sale of any apparatus or vessel which may be used as a still or part of a still, if the seller has knowledge that it is to be used in the manufacture of liquor constitutes a violation of the prohibition laws.

This was the ruling made late yesterday by Judge Geigen in common pleas court when he found William A. Shy guilty of violating this dry law and fined him $200 and costs. It was alleged Shy sold several copper cans and other apparatus to a customer knowing that they were to be used as parts of a whiskey still. The decision sets a precedent in the state.

Administration has not yet incorporated any objection to that order of business.

The administration told the delegates at the Washington conference that it was favorably disposed toward an economic conference. Mr. Harding went away with the conviction that America would attend. Prime Minister Lloyd George was convinced the United States was at last coming to the aid of Europe. British flexibility and compliance with American wishes at the arms conference was based almost entirely upon the belief that cooperation with the United States at this time meant closer cooperation on economic matters later on. But Mr. Harding did make it clear that the United States would not take the initiative. He said that the United States would consider the agenda or program carefully before committing itself to participation.

Poincaré's Attitude.

In the midst of this situation the brains ministry was overthrown and the first thing Premier Poincaré did was to abolish the supreme council and decline to permit French delegates at Genoa to discuss German reparations. These two external developments gave the Harding administration an opportunity to avoid giving domestic reasons as the excuse for declining the invitation to Genoa. Economic conferences are Railroad-Endowed and Taught, Board of Engineers Told.

Cincinnati—Declaring that the University of Chicago was "endowed by railroad interests" that its professors were "railroad propagandists" who were "biased, hostile and unfair" to waterway improvements, Albert Krell, president of the Central Inland Waterways association, created a stir at the hearing of the United States board of engineers for rivers and harbors here Tuesday.

He criticized the previous special board of engineers for going to such an institution for advice on the question of building the proposed Lake Erie to Ohio river barge canal. General Harry Taylor, chairman of the board, declared Mr. Krell was "drawing a very erroneous conclusion." It is meant to question the integrity of the special board.

General Taylor, speaking for his own board, then said, "we are favorable to the project," meaning the general project of a lake to Ohio river canal.

Mr. Krell said that the report of Prof. J. M. Clark, of the University of Chicago, was "entirely untrue" and that America is likely to attend but that they are opposed now until there is a showdown on both sides of the Atlantic. In Europe it must be determined whether the Poincaré policy of French isolation is to be triumphant, and in America it must be determined whether the policy of American isolation is to be dictated by the United States Senate to the chief executive. Until the internal situation in the French chamber of deputies and analogous situation in the American congress is clarified, economic reconstruction is indefinitely delayed.

sity of Chicago, for the special board, indicated it would cost $400,000 to build the canal from Cincinnati to Toledo with its branch to Lake Michigan and Mr. Krell gave other figures to show the figures were three times too high.

General Taylor said Prof. Clark had nothing to do with these estimates.

WANDERER IN COLD BELIEVED EX-YANK

Escanaba, Mich.—Wandering on the Ford river road, just outside the city limits, with the temperature below zero, a man believed to be George Madden of Keweenaw, an ex-soldier and apparently a victim of shell shock, was taken to a hospital here and is being cared for by the American Legion here. The man was reported to the police after he had walked into the home of one of the residents of the Ford river road district. He was found dead and when taken to the hospital, he refused to eat. Efforts are being made to communicate with his relatives.

Foundation Is Receiving Many Subscriptions

V. P. Richardson, Rock county chairman of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation reports that contributions are daily being made to the fund and the county will soon have its quota if the rate is kept up. Every bank is a place for subscriptions and all are voluntary.

Carl Meier, chairman of the Wisconsin committee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Fund, has just issued this statement regarding the opening of the campaign to raise $1,000,000 more:

"Messages by telephone and telegraph indicate that Wisconsin will generously over-subscribe its quota. Jefferson county has the honor of going over the top first; Green county second. The village of Monticello has the largest excess over its quota. New Glarus, Green county, also has the distinction of going over the top in the campaign."

"Wherever this campaign is under full way splendid results are being obtained. Everyone interested in the cause of promoting American ideals should join in the movement to establish the Woodrow Wilson prize."

In Milwaukee County

William J. Kershaw, chairman of the Milwaukee county committee of the Foundation fund, reports that the results in Milwaukee county have been gratifying and that additional subscriptions are coming in daily. In all parts of the county the response has been enthusiastic and generous. The promoters of the movement believe that the sum total will be largely in excess of their fondest anticipation.

The women, especially, are showing themselves interested in this great movement and are helping liberally—over the poorest, some donating war savings stamps. One woman gave a $100 library bond.

The railroad shop men donated $1,000 to the fund and other labor organizations have promised hearty support.
